NCPIE's New Logo Unveiled:

National Council on Patient Information and Education
Working together to promote safe medicine use

NCPIE's comprehensive new website is scheduled to launch at the end of March 2017. The website will enable NCPIE to build on its 35 year legacy of raising awareness about the role of enhanced patient-health professional communication in promoting good health and the safe and appropriate use of medicines. The new site will be easy to navigate and will serve our key target audiences of patients, caregivers, the general public and healthcare professionals well into the future. The "Be Medwise" in the new logo is action-oriented, unifying and clearly encompasses the safe and appropriate use of all medicines (both Rx and OTC). Be Medwise will also serve as NCPIE's new URL (bemedwise.org). When the website launches, visitors will be redirected from talkaboutrx.org. The development of the new website was made possible with support from Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc.

NCPIE National Self-Care Action Plan - Priorities for Action Across an Ages & Life Stages Continuum

NCPIE's National Self-Care Action Plan and Priorities for Action Across an Ages & Life Stages Continuum is in the final development and review stages and is scheduled for release in March. The Self-Care Action Plan will provide a framework for action, including a communications and educational plan to reach consumer and patient audiences, healthcare professionals, health policymakers and the media with impactful themes and messaging to advance informed self-care. As reported in prior issues of the NCPIE E-News, NCPIE convened an invitational project advisory team (PAT) meeting on September, 21, 2016 comprised of diverse stakeholders to seek their input and guidance on the development of a comprehensive National Self-Care Action Plan.

Support for development of the Self-Care Action Plan was provided by Pfizer Consumer Health.

NCPIE Will Collaborate with the Convenient Care Association (CCA) on an Adherence Improvement Training Webinar

As part of NCPIE's efforts to continue to advocate education and training on adherence improvement, NCPIE will collaborate with the Convenient Care Association (CCA) (a NCPIE Board Member), on an Adherence Improvement Webinar in June for CCA's healthcare professional members (pharmacists, nurse practitioners and physician assistants). The webinar is a next step following the development of "Promoting Medication Adherence," the on-line training module for medical residents that NCPIE developed in 2016 with the American Medical Association's Introduction to the Practice of Medicine (IPM) residency training program.

Consumers' Knowledge of Acetaminophen Safe Use at All-Time High According to CHPA Foundation Survey

A growing number of Americans know how to safely use medicines containing the most common drug ingredient in the U.S. A new nationwide survey conducted by the Consumer Healthcare Products Association (CHPA) Educational Foundation (a NCPIE Board Member) shows a positive trend over the past six years: more people than ever are aware of how to use products containing acetaminophen safely and effectively, while avoiding the risks of accidental overdose and liver damage.

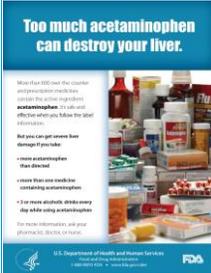

Findings include:

* More consumers agree it is "important not to exceed the dosing directions on the label" of pain relievers (increased to 96 percent in 2016 from 90 percent in 2010).

* More consumers understand that "exceeding the recommended daily dose of acetaminophen may lead to liver damage" (increased to 90 percent in 2016 from 78 percent in 2010).

Educational efforts from healthcare providers, patient organizations, manufacturers, and government agencies have all played a part in this trend in awareness. CHPA Educational Foundation is a founding member of the Acetaminophen Awareness Coalition, which established the Know Your Dose campaign in 2011 to educate consumers on how to safely use medicines that contain acetaminophen. Other acetaminophen safe use and medicine safety programs launched in the past few years include FDA's Safe Use Initiative, Johnson & Johnson's Get Relief Responsibly, National Consumers League's Life Smarts, and National Council on Patient Information and Education's MUST for Seniors. Help Promote FDA's Ongoing Safe Use of Acetaminophen Educational Effort

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) (non-voting liaison to NCPIE's board), would appreciate your organization's support of their ongoing Safe Use of Acetaminophen effort to educate the public on the proper use of over-the-counter (OTC) medicines and to warn that taking too much acetaminophen can destroy the liver. The FDA's Using Acetaminophen and Nonsteroidal Anti-inflammatory Drugs Safely web page features several multi-media educational resources for use by educators, health care professionals, and consumers. The FDA also participates on the Acetaminophen Awareness Coalition.
